Monday's principal event, and in many ways the most interesting function of the week, was the afternoon reception given by Mrs. K. B. Armour for her mother and sister, Mrs. W. L. Hearne and Mrs. Frank Hearne of Wheeling, W. Va., and the following evening reception and dance.

Since these were the first large affairs given in the beautiful Armour mansion, the entire house was thrown open to the guests, who eagerly accepted the opportunity to inspect every part of the building, the architecture, decorations and furnishings of which are perfect types of the periods represented.

For this occasion a very large number of palms were employed in decorating the great hall, the grand staircase and the drawing-rooms. On the staircase and broad landings, too, were many potted azaleas, white and red. These delicate flowers were also used in the exquisitely dainty Louis Quinze drawing room, where Mrs. Armour, Mrs. Hearne and Mrs. Frank Hearne received in the afternoon.

Near the entrance of the hall were great vases of American beauty roses, and at the farther end, with a background of

Near the entrance of the hall were great vases of American beauty roses, and at the farther end, with a background of stately paims, Miss Grace Halbert served lemonade. A lovely basket of white and deep pink carnations adorned the table, and Miss Halbert was gowned in white organdle over pink silk, with ruffles of crepe de lisse.

Miss DePazza Roberts and Miss Sleeper served ice cream and chocolate in the dining room, a splendid Gothic apartment done in mahogany. Dollies of Renaissance lace and a fluffy centerpiece of crimson silk protected the shining surface of the table, while a half dozen beautiful vases filled with Meteor roses and the crimson tully shades of the lamps completed the color scheme. Miss Roberts wore white Swiss over pink, and Miss Sleeper a French organdle in rose and black. Mrs. Selby Jones and Miss Tough also assisted in the dining room.

Miss Maude Askew,
Miss Alice Chappell,

The celebration of the marriage of Miss Evangeline Hendrix and Mr. George Waring, Jr., at the residence of the bride's purents, Bishop and Mrs. Hendrix, Tuesday evening, was an altogether charming ceremony. It was a pink wedding, and large clusters of bridesmaid roses and graceful draperies of smilax decorated the second parlor, where the ceremony was performed. The drawing room was in white and green, freesias and asparagus fern being used. Meteor roses glowed in the hall, jonquils made the library fragrant, and dainty pink tulips reigned in the dining room with wreaths of asparagus fern and the soft light of pink candles.

At 7:20 o'clock, Mrs. William E. Royster played the wedding march, and the bride, on the arm of her father, and preceded by her attendants, advanced through the first parlor to the tower bay in the second parlor, where she was met by the groom and his best man. The bridal party stood beneath an arch formed by the bending fronds of two giant palms, whose tops towered to the ceiling. Rev. Mr.
Charles W. Scarritt, uncle of the bride,
read the service.

The bride was becomingly gowned in magnolia taffeta, with demi-train. The bodice yoke was of shirred mousseline bordered by a bertha of point lace. The long sleeves were shirred and capped by epaulets of pleated mousseline. The bridal bouquet was of filies of the valley and lilies of the valley were worn in her hair.

The maid of honor, Miss Mamie Hendrix, wore a very lovely gown of crepe de chine over pink, Irish point lace insertion covered the bodice in a lattice design and the girdle and stock were of pink velvet. Her flowers, and those of the bridesmaids, were pink roses.

Mr. Nathan Hendrix and Mr. Walton, of Chicago, were the groomsmen and Mr. Simpson attended the groom as best man. The wedding guests were limited to relatives and immediate friends.
At the reception which followed, Mrs. Hendrix was assisted by Mrs. Adam Hendrix, Mrs. E. L. Scarritt, Mrs. W. C. Scarritt, Mrs. Elliott H. Jones. Mrs. Charles Scarritt and Mrs. Davis, of Fayette, Mo. The young women who served in the dining room were Miss Eva Case, Miss Callie Hallar, Miss Minnle Miller and Miss Mary Owens. Fortune's favors were showered on Miss Case, who caught the Callie Hallar, Miss Minnie Miller and Miss Mary Owens. Fortune's favors were showered on Miss Case, who caught the bride's bouquet and also discovered a dime in her portion of the wedding cake. Miss Helen Hendrix found the ring, and the darning needle fell to the lot of little Miss Margaret Scarritt.

Mr. and Mrs. Waring left the same evening for a Southern wedding trip, and will be at home after April 1 at Righi Kulm, Norledge place.

Among the out of town guests were Mr. George Waring, Sr., and Miss Waring, of Cement, Ga., father and sister of the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Holmes entertained with a 7 c'clock supper and cards Tuesday evening at their home in Hyde park. The national colors, represented by rcd, white and blue flowers, decorated each table, and the name cards were small flags. On the menu, too, the patriotic colors were prominent, and the climax was reached at the appearance of the ice cream, which was frozen in the form of small continental soldiers armed with firelocks. The patriotic spirit which is at present roused to such a height pervaded the company to such an extent that nothing save the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" with the utmost enthusiasm could bring the company to apply themselves to the playing of cards with the attentiveness necessary to the winning of prizes.

However, these were finally duly awarded to Mrs. Albert Childs and Mrs. Hearne, Mr. Fearey and Mr. Clarke. The guests were:

The studio tea given Tuesday by Mrs. Hunter Meriwether for Miss Narcise K. Standeford, was characterized by the spirit of the day, and the national colors appeared everywhere in the decorations. These were most pronounced in the dining room, where red, white and blue ribbons depended from the chandelier, and were caught at the corners of the table. The centerpiece was a deep blue vase filled with red and white carnations. Miss Daisy Hubbard and Miss Norma Wheeler in Martha Washington gowns of white satin and high powdered hair, sat at either end of the table and served chocolate and ices. Assisting in the dining room were Mrs. D. M. Goodrich, Miss Standeford, Miss Bachman, Miss O'Rourke and Mr. Fred Aylesworth.

high praise from the throngs of admiring guests. The ballroom was hung with flags and bunting, and over the entrance, the old flag which General Braymer carried through the war was draped with a picture of George and Martha Washington. Punch was served at either end of the long apartment by Miss Martha Brent and Miss Sadye Anderson.

The men were included in the invitations, of which about 400 were issued.

The dancing party given Monday evening by a number of high school boys was a very merry, and, of course, highly success-ful affair. In one end of the hall punch was served, and in the other. The Home Palladium held its regular dancing reception at Casino last Thursday night. It proved to be one of the most delightful since the organization of that club. There was a large attendance and as excellent music was furnished, a general good time was enjoyed. The announcement that the club will give a calico-apron and necktie ball next Thursday night will probably attract attention from all who attend the dances of that club. A gold watch is to be given as a prize to the lady wearing the handsomest costume, and a prize to the gentleman with the corresponding necktie.

WHAT GIRLS ARE DOING.

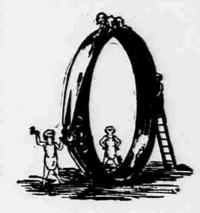

Badminton Is to Be the Fad for Lenten Evenings-How It Is Played. One of the amusements the girls are all crazy about for Lenten evenings is bad-minton. Two years ago this game was very popular among the young people in town, says Harper's Bazar. It is very much like the old game of battledoor and shuttle-oock, played over a high net in an enclosed court marked out for the purpose There seemed to be a sort of hull in the enthusiasm over the game last winter. Now this year up the fashion comes again, and instead of one badminton club there are three in full swing at present. The members play for prizes, which are usually very useful and handsome articles, such as silver-backed brushes, whisks with silver handles, bangles, and match boxes and as silver-backed brushes, whisks with silver handles, bangles, and match boxes and charms for the men. The season will end up at all the different clubs with grand tournaments, when the prizes will of course be finer still, and there will be fees, cake, tea, and bouillon served all the afternoon. These badminton clubs meet sometimes in the afternoon and sometimes for the evening. They are supported by subscriptions from the members of the club-$10 each for seven meetings.

Some of the girls who are fond of music as a diversion have organized banjo clubs, to meet at one another's house during Lent. Banjo-playing is becoming quite a "fad" again.

At ohe time it was the mandolin, then the guitar: now the young people have gone back to the banjo with renewed vigor, and all the girls who do not know how to play are learning. Consequently we hear of at least four clubs having been startd for Lent. One of these clubs, which is composed or six girls and six men, all good musicians, will meet every Thursday evening. They will play the popular melodies of the day, comic songs, etc., entirely by ear. Another club has been formed by girls who do not know how to play very well. They have a good teacher, a colored man, who is giving them leasons once a week at the different houses, and although so far they have had but three meetings, they can "pick the strings" already with great dexterity. There is something very attractive about the playing of the banjo, and it is no wonder that the girls have gone back to it.

The value of a ring is often determined by the manner in which it is made as much as the material out of which it is constructed. Notice in the rings which we sell the absence of a trace of solder, the firmness of the setting and the finish given the ring, no matter what the karat is. These points are in favor of the wearing quality as much as the material. Just thought we had better call your attention to this. You may want a ring.
